I'm not sure if this means we have the ok to send this out to the press or not...it is so late in the day, maybe we could hold off until next week...but it is not my decision

Very impressive how we were all thinking about this at the same time. I was literally making the small statistical adjustments to the messaging statement while you guys were exchanging emails.

Where we are at is that we have delivered packages to 16 of the 17 homes - it appears the 17th is on vacation and we'll have to roll-out today without them. We'll catch-up with them when they return.

Attached is updated statement with Qs/As changing everything to read 16 homes or 47 homes in lieu of 17 and 48. The home we have not reached did not have any parameters exceeding trigger levels so they do not otherwise impact the balance of our numbers.

Let me know if you need anything else. We are prepared to post individual packages immediately. We're working on the full spreadsheet to see if we can hide the data for the 17th home and post that as well - will only do so if we are sure there are no errors/problems. If so it won't happen until late this afternoon at the earliest. Thanks, dennis.

PS - I did find one error in the thirds Q/A regarding a sodium message that I should have caught sooner. Our total number of homes with Na above guidelines for restricted diets is five, not three. I made that change as well.

David,

Dennis is prepared to tweak the materials based on whether we are able to successfully deliver all the results. We are holding off until we have a clear sense of the status of that task. Dennis, any news on that?

Hey there - when are results being posted online? Are we sharing statement w/reporters who have covered or sitting tight this time around?

Thanks,
David
